Just at sundown, when his day's work was ended, he took a quantity of unwhitened rice which was the principal food for the poor, and he cooked, dried it, and tied it in a square cloth, which he swung in a bundle around his neck along with a gourd filled with cool, sweet water. Then he lifted his helpless old mother to his back and started on his painful journey up the mountain. The road was long and step; the narrow road was crossed and re-crossed by many paths made by the hunters and woodcutters. In some place, they lost and confuse, but he gave no heed, One path or another, it mattered not. On he went, climbing blindly upward—ever upward towards the high bare summit of what is known as Obatsuyama, the mountain of the "abandoning of the aged".

Dragon tales are known in many cultures, from the Americas to Europe, and from India to China. It's not clear when or where stories of dragons first emerged, but the huge, flying serpents were described by the ancient Greeks and Sumerians. The word 'dragon' comes from the ancient Greek word 'draconta', 'to watch', suggesting that the dragons are responsible for guarding valuables. Dragons typically guard reassures such as mountains of gold coins or gems. Some dragons have wings; others don't. Some dragons breathe fire; others can't. Some are only a few feet long; others span miles. Some live under the ocean; others can only be found in caves and inside the mountains.

47. Read the passage given below and answer the questions that follow:

a) We sometimes think that it would be very nice to have no work to do. How we envy rich people who do not have to work for their living but can just what they please all the year round. Yet, when we feel like this, we make a mistake. Sometimes rich people are not as happy as we think they are, because they are tired of having nothing to do. Most of us are happy when we have regular work to do for our living, especially if the work is what we like to do. They first thing the work does for us is to give us happiness. He is like a beggar in the streets who takes the money of others who hard to earn it. Such people do not live independently and ought to feel ashamed of them. But the honest worker who earns his living by useful toil can hold up his head and respect himself. Lastly regular work builds up character. It teaches us such good habits as punctuality, carefulness and faithfulness in work. It is the man who works, not the idler, who as a rule develops the best character.
