Pheasants are shy, charming birds known for their brilliant plumage. These beautiful birds occupy an important niche in nature's scheme of things. Of the 900 bird species and 155 families, the pheasants belong to the order Galliformes and family phasinidae. The Galliformes are known as game birds and this includes, pheasants, partridges, quails, grouse francolins, turkeys and megapodes.

There are 51 specie's of pheasants in the world and these are shown in the Identification chart brought out by the Environment Society of India (ESI). The purpose of this chart is to create awareness among members of the school eco-clubs under the National Green Corps (NGC) of the Ministry of Environment and Forests, Government of India.

Except for the Congo peafowl, all the other pheasants are from Asia. Scientists believe that all pheasants originated from the Himalayas, and then scattered in to Tibet, China, Myanmar, South and South East Asian countries as well as the caucasus Mountains. The Jungle Fowl and the peafowl spread to South India and Sri Lanka long before the early settlers established themselves in the Indo-Gangetic plain.

About a third of all the pheasants in the world are found in India. The male blue peafowl (the peacock) is the best known member of the pheasant family and is India's national bird. It occupies a prominent place in India's art, culture and folklore.

But O' spider on the wall said,
"Can you do it in the air?
Can you spin it out of gossamer.
From the ceiling to the star?
Can you let the wind blow through it
So it sways but doesn't tear?
Then can you grab on to it
And swing lightly on a hair?
When you can - then you may truly say,
I've done some weavin' there".
