When the lava ejected by a volcano is thick it goes on accumulating round the vent and Forms a conical hill.with further accumulations of lava in this way,it forms a high mountain called a volcanic mountain.The mouth of the volcano which looks like a bowl is known as a

Crater. When a volcano remains inactive for a long period, the rain water accumulates in the crater, and forms a lake called a crater lake. Sometimes lava comes out through deep fissures. This type of lava ejection is called fissure eruption. Some volcanoes emit lava, ashes, steam, gases etc. frequently. They are called active volcanoes. The Barren island volcano in the Andaman islands, Etna in Sicily and Stromboli in the Mediterranean sea are good examples. There are about 450 active volcanoes in the world. Lake Vostok is about 250 kilometres long and 40 kilometres wide making it one of the largest lakes. But nobody has yet touched its waters. This is because it lies under almost four kilometres of ice, in the centre of Antarctica, below Russia's Vostok Station. Surprisingly, its water is not frozen. Heat from the earth's interior, and the insulating properties of the thick blanket of ice above it, keep the water in a liquid state. Though the existence of the lake was suspected since the 1970s, Russian and British scientists using radar technology confirmed it only in 1996.

Questions:

- i) Where is Lake Vostok?
- ii) Who confirmed the existence of the lake?
- iii) When did they confirm?
- iv) What technology was used to confirm the existence of the lake?
- v) What keeps its waters in a fluid state?
