41.	a) A NICE CUP OF TEA - GEORGE ORWELL Eric Arthur Blair, better known by his pen name George Orwell , was an English novelist, essayist, journalist and critic, whose work in marked by lucid prose, awareness of social injustice, opposition to totalitarianism and outspoken support of democratic socialism. “Tea is one of the main stays of civilizations in this country” - George Orwell One of the most influential statement of the British ‘ way of tea ’ is George Orwell’s

essay. 'A nice cup of tea published in the evening standard on 12 January 1946. It was written at a time when tea was rationed and is short supply, against the backdrop of serve food shortage across Europe. The process of tea making is a subject matter of violent disputes. The author has come up with eleven golden rules for preparation of a nice tea. First he begins to insist on using an Indian or Ceylonese Tea, to feel wiser, braver and more optimistic. Tea should be made in small quantities' in a china or earthenware. The pot should be warmed beforehand. Tea should always be strong and it should be put straight into the teapot. We should take the teapot to the kettle and after making tea, one should stir it well. Tea should be drunk out of a cylindrical type of cup, as it hold more tea. Milk that is too creamy always given the tea, a sickly taste. So we should pour the cream of the milk. Two of these rules are generally agreed by the public, but at least four other are actually controversial. 'What should be poured first in the cup' has become a subject of controversial points. George Orwell says that one should pour tea first in the cup. While most of the people prefer to add sugar in the tea, the author says to add pepper or salt to it. If we drink tea without sugar for a fortnight, we would never ruin tea by sweetening it again. He claims that there are some mysterious social etiquette surrounding the tea pot. It is vulgar to drink tea out of one's saucer. There are some subsidiary uses of tea leaves such as telling fortunes, predicting the arrival of visitors, feeding rabbits, healing burns and sweeping the carpet.

ON THE RULE OF THE ROAD

- A.G.GARDINER

Introduction:

A.G. Gardiner was a British journalist and author. He was a prolific essayist. and his style and subject matter easily qualified him to be categorized as what the English would call a very civilized gentleman. His essay "On the Rule of the Road" was included in one of Gardiner's compilations titled "Leaves in the Wind". In this essay he describes the difference between 'personal liberty' and 'public liberty'.

The Stout Lady: A stout lady was walking with her basket down the middle of a street in Petrogard.

When she was asked to walk on the pavement which was meant for pedestrians she replied that she would walk where she liked since she got liberty.

The Result of Personal Liberty: If the pedestrians walked down the middle of the road, the end of such liberty would be universal chaos. Everybody would be getting in everybody else's way and nobody would get anywhere. Individual liberty would have become social anarchy.

The Traffic Policeman: The policeman is the symbol not of tyranny, but of liberty. So that the liberties of all may be preserved, the liberties of everybody must be curtailed. When we are in hurry and see our car pulled up by his rudeness and feel that our liberty has been outraged. We feel that how would be interfere with our free use of the public highway. A reasonable person would not allow his actions to cause inconvenience to others.

He should submit (imply) himself to a curtailment of private liberty .so that a maelstrom (Utter confusion) would be averted anywhere and social order could be maintained.

Definition of Liberty : Liberty is not a personal affair only, but a social contract. It is an accommodation of interest. I can wear any kind of clothes, dye my hair or wax my moustache or wear an overcoat and sandal or go to bed late and wake up late, follow any religion I shall follow my fancy and no one has the right to ask me.

Public Liberty : We have a whole kingdom in which we can rule alone, can do what we choose, be wise or ridiculous, harsh or easy, conventional or odd. But when we step out of it we should qualify ourselves so that it will not affect other's liberty. For eg: if I want to practise trombone from midnight till three in my bedroom or in the street then I am interfering in other people's liberty because they would like to sleep in quiet.

Small Matters of Conduct : There are lot of people in the world and we have to accommodate our liberty to theirs. We forget this and we are much more conscious of the imperfections of others in this respect. A reasonable consideration for the rights or feelings of others is the foundation of social conduct. It is in this matter of conduct, we must observe the rules of the road. We pass judgement upon ourselves and declare that we are civilized or uncivilized.

Conclusion : The great moments of heroism and sacrifice are rare. It is the little habits of common place intercourse that make up the great sum of life that sweeten or make bitter our journey.

"Liberty means responsibility. That is why most men dread it".

42. a) ALL THE WORLD'S A STAGE
- WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE

'All the world's a stage' is an extract from the play 'As you like it', a romantic comedy by Shakespeare . It is spoken by Jacques in Act II. scene VII. In this poem, Shakespeare Compares the 'World' to a 'stage', and 'life' to a 'play'. He has divided life into seven stages each having its own Varied qualities and features .

SECOND CHILDHOOD

Shakespeare says that a world is a stage. All men and woman are only actors. The stage has both 'entrances' (birth) and 'exits' (death). With the birth of an 'infant' begins the first stage of man's life. In this stage the child whispers in mewling style and vomits, on the arms of the care taking nurse. The baby grows and reaches the second stages, the unhappy school boy, reluctantly moving like a snail to school. In the third stage, man plays the role of a lover. He sighs like a furnace. He Keeps on writing ballads praising the beauty of the eyebrows of his beloved. The next stage, he gets shifted to the 'Zone of bravery'. Here he acts as a soldier in the fourth stage. He Keeps a beard like that of a leopard. He always runs after honors and fame. "He is ready even to enter a cannon's mouth fast for momentary glory and bubble of reputation." In the fifth stage, man plays the role of a justice. He is fond of eating chicken and develops a fat round belly. He is full of wise sayings and modern instances. He is a man of wisdom and knowledge. In the sixth stage, man becomes weak and thin in body. He wears slippers, spectacles and clothes that he bought when he was young. These pants and stocking have become loose for his shrunk and thin legs. The seventh stage is the 'second childhood'. In this stage, man becomes very old and starts behaving like a child. His manly Voice changes into childish treble. Slowly he loses his faculties of 'sight', 'hearing', 'smell' and 'taste'. Finally he exits the world.

INCIDENT OF THE FRENCH CAMP

- ROBERT BROWNING

The poem 'The Incident of the French Camp' written by Robert Browning narrates an actual incident in the war in 1809 between France and Austria, led by Napoleon. Napoleon has been a great motivator to his army. His Military skill and genius have won him many admirers. When the poem begins, we get a description of the great warrior Napoleon standing on a little mound and watching the war anxiously. His mind was oppressive with many thoughts and he felt that all his ambition plans would become futile if they failed (the army leader Lannes) to conquer Ratisbon.

Out twixt the battery-smokes there flew.

A rider, bound on bound

Though the poem does not give a detailed description of the battle, We come to know that the young boy has played a vital role in bringing triumph to the French army. The young boy riding at great speed approached the mound where Napoleon stood, in smiling joy. As he came closer, the narrator observed that the rider, a young boy, was severely wounded. The boy had kept his lips compressed to stop the blood coming through. But he showed no sign of pain and jumped off the horse and gave the happy news of Victory to the emperor. He informed the emperor that they had won Ratisbon for him and he himself had hoisted the flag of France. Soon his eyes softened when he saw that the boy was fatally wounded. Like a caring mother eagle, he asked the boy if he was wounded. This question touched the soldier's pride and he replied that he was killed and fell dead, smiling beside his chief. Courage and patriotism are the basic qualities of not only an emperor, but also every soldier. Soldiers fight their enemy not only for monetary considerations, but for the honour of their motherland. It is evident that the young soldier obtained virtues like devotion to duty, patriotism, gallantry and chivalry from Napoleon, the legendary warrior.

“ A Man is a Patriot if his heart beats true to his Country”

LIFE OF PI

-YANN MARTEL

The famous novel “Life of Pi” is an abridged (shortened) version written by a Spanish born canadian author Yann Martel published in 2001 become internationally famous and awarded the Man Booker prize in 2002. Pi recounts the ordeal (sufferings) he faced in the middle of the pacific ocean after the ship wreck. That is The Protagonist is Piscine Molitor “Pi” patel an Indian boy from Pondicherry survives 227 days after a shipwreck while stranded on a lifeboat in the Pacific Ocean with a Bengal tiger named Richard Parker. The Crisis in the mid ocean brought the pathetic experience where pi became lone and orphaned and in the state of shock . He found himself in the company of Richard Parker, a tiger, a Zebra, Monkey (orange juice) and Hyena. After two and a half days of drifting in the lifeboat, Pi discovered that Richard Parker was on board just below him. They were literally and figuratively in the same boat. Parker was unusually quiet because of sea-sickness and the impact of heavy sedation might be given to him by Pi's father.

I pinned by weakness to the tarpaulin. Even thinking was exhausting .....

He managed the fear of the animals but he could not manage the thirst. His throat was parched he felt very thirsty. His blood had thickened. His leg had become stiff. The author calls it “liquid life”. When Pi was dying of thirst, he forgot his fear of Richard Parkar. His thirst overpowered his fear of Richard parkar and he went about exploring for fresh water. A little later, he succeeded in his search and came back to life and senses after drinking the Elixir of life. His mouth became moist and soft. He was coming back to life from the dead. Pi accepted that the parker calmed him down. He said that one who scared him brought him peace. He wanted to tame him. His attitude was that the tiger would die first. But suddenly he realized that part of him loved the tiger. He did not want to be left alone. So he wanted to live with the tiger. At last Pi's boat reached an island. Richard Parker jumped and walked away without even looking back at Pi. Pi was found by ship and reunited with his family.

THE MIDNIGHT VISITOR

-ROBERT ARTHUR

“Appearances are often deceptive”

Robert Jay Arthur jr. (1909-1969) was an America writer who specialised in crime and Mystery fiction. The story ‘The Midnight Visitor’ narrator how Ausable ‘outsmarted’ the deadly criminal with his ‘resourcefulness’ and ‘presence of mind’. Ausable was a secret agent . He was a fat and sloppy fellow . In his appearance, he did not seem to be a romantic figure. He came to paris from Boston twenty years ago. He could speak French and German fairly well. He had not-lost the American accent. He was very intelligent person, He had a great presence of mind .Aside from his appearance, Ausable is a fitting secret agent to the core. Ausable did not fit any description of a secret agent Fowler had every read. Following hm down the musty corridor of the gloomy French hotel where Ausable had a room, Fowler felt let down and disappointed on meaty Ausable

“You are disappointed,” Ausable said wheezily over his shoulder. “You were told that I was a secret agent, a spy, dealing in espionage and danger

He had a different picture of a secret agent in his mind. Fowler was thrilled when he entered Ausable’s room because half way across the room he saw a tall man with a small automatic pistol is his hand. That was Fowler’s first authentic thrill of the day. “The Unexpected presence of a criminal wielding a gun triggers different reactions in the two men who entered the room . This is evident in the story of the “The Midnight Visitor”. Max, a criminal had hatched an evil plan to take the confidential report concerning a new missile from Ausable a secret agent. Seeing that the criminal had been determined getting the report Ausable was shocked. But his presence of mind was more powerful than the shock. He pretended to be unaffected by this and moved to an armchair and sat down heavily. He told max that there was a balcony just below his window. He told max that the balcony was the part of the next room. He also complained that it was second time in a month that somebody had entered his room using the balcony. When the knock was heard, Asuable Very cleverly made up a story and told max that it would be the police whom he had called to protect the important report. This made max’ black with anger’ as he backed swiftly towards the Window . Amusing that there was a balcony. He fell straight from the sixth floor to the ground. He was dead.

The balcony in this story plays a significant role to get rid of a criminal. Thus Ausable outwit max using his wit and quick wisdom.

	Fowler was disappointed to meet him at the beginning of the story, was very much impressed with his intelligence and presence of the mind at the end of the story. Moral : “Never let your emotions Overpower your intelligence “
