What do you mean by contract?.

What are the essential elements of contract?

Introduction to the lesson

Contract is an agreement enforceable by law. General rules that apply to all contracts apply to contracts for the sale of products. Chapter 7 of the Indian Contract legislation of 1872 initially applied, and a specific contract legislation was later passed in the year 1930.. Let us discuss this act in detail

LESSON DEVELOPMENT

Two parties, goods, the transfer of goods, and a price are required in order to make a contract, and the term "sale" encompasses agreements made to sell as well.

The phrase "goods" refers to any movable property, excluding money and claims that can be brought to court. It may be classified as existing, future and contingent goods.

A contract of sale's primary goal is to transfer ownership from the seller to the buyer.

Conditions are necessary for the contract's primary goal, and if they are not met, the agreement is void. Every contract contains a number of explicit and inferred conditions.

Warranty is given only minor weight, and breach of warranty does not result in contract cancellation.

When the full price is not paid or any particular negotiable instrument is dishonoured, the seller is considered to be an unpaid seller.
