South Indian Cuisine boasts a large variety of food in all tastes and manners. And as much as I love a hearty meal in the form of a sumptuous biriyani or rice with sambar and rasam, my comfort dish remains the simple and uncomplicated curd rice. Don't let its simplicity and preparation time fool you. It is highly versatile and customizable. If you are running short of time, you can mix curd and rice and let it be. If you want to elevate it or take it to the next level, some dressing in oil, curry leaves, mustard seeds and dried chillies will do the trick. Anyone who wants to add more variety and nutrients can mix in an assortment of vegetables, such as carrot and beetroot, giving it a pop of colour. Or if you have a sweet tooth like me, a handful of pomegranate seeds will suffice.

ENGLISH IS INDISPENSABLE FOR YOUR FUTURE
