Margie even wrote about it that night in her diary. On the page headed 17 May 2157, she wrote, "Today Tommy found a real book!" It was very old-book. Margie's grandfather once said that when he was a little boy his grandfather told him that there was a time when all stories printed on paper. They turned the pages, which were yellow and crinky, and it was awfully funny to read words that stood still instead of moving the way they were suppose to on a screen you know. And then when turned back to the page before, it had the same words on it that had when they read it the first time.

- When did Tommy find a real book?
- Who wrote the diary?
- What did Margie's grandfather tell once?
- What was awfully funny?
- How were the pages of the book.

- 47) a)
- Read the following paragraph and answer the questions given below.

One great defect of our civilization is that it does not know what to do with its knowledge. Science, as we have seen, has given up powers fit for the gods, yet we use them like small children. For example, we do not know how to manage our machines. Machines were made to be man's servant. But he has grown so dependent on them that they are in a fair way to become his masters. Most men spend most of their lives looking after and waiting upon machines.

Answer the questions based on the given passage:

- What is the great defect of our civilization?
- Which has given us power?
- Who were made to be man's servant?
- How do men spend most of their lives?
