Drinking coffee and tea is something most of us do daily, and the grews are enjoyed more in the company of friends and relatives. During the pandemic, we realised the deep bond even more deeply. Covid-19 has taught us the importance of this need. Groups can meet over a video call, each member enjoying a cup of tea; yet there is nothing like imperson. It helps to reduce loneliness, care for one another and hold discussions and hold discussions that lead to a deep connection. I suggest people to form this kind of groups and meet in convenient frequencies - daily, monthly or on weekends. An easy time to meet is Sunday mornings. A mix of different generations is good. Aviod gossip about each other or those not in group. And no financial and business fransactions unless it's an emergency. A bit of caring, sharing and conversation is always welcome.
