Q 24	“India had unique system of communication during the 14th century” Examine the statement made by Ibn Battuta Answer- <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Ibn Battuta was amazed by the efficiency of the Communication system present in the Fourteenth century in India. • He described that the postal system which allowed merchants to not only send information and remit credit across long distances, but also to dispatch goods required at short notice. • According to him the India the postal system is of two kinds. The horse post, called uluq, is run by royal horses stationed at a short distance of every four miles, and the other was the foot-post which has three stations per mile; it is called dawa. • The postal system was so efficient that while it took fifty days to reach Delhi from Sind, the news reports of spies would reach the Sultan through the postal system in just five days. • At every third mile outside a village were three pavilions in which men used to sit with girded loins ready to start. Each of them carries a rod, two cubits in length, with copper bells at the top. When the courier starts from the city, the man holds the letter in one hand and the rod with its bells on the other; and he runs as fast as he can. When the men in the pavilion hear the ringing of the bell, they get ready. As soon as the courier reaches them, one of them takes the letter from his hand and runs at top speed shaking the rod all the while until he reaches the next dawa, the same process continues till the letter reaches its destination. This foot-post is quicker than the horse-post. (Pg 129) Any three points to be examined	3
Q 25	Analyse the main features of Amara nayaka system which was introduced in the Vijayanagar Empire.	3

	Answer- <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The Amara-nayaka system was a major political innovation of the Vijayanagar Empire. It is likely that many features of this system were derived from the iqta system of the Delhi Sultanate. • The Amara-nayakas were military commanders who were given territories to govern by the raya. • They collected taxes and other dues from peasants, crafts persons and traders in the area. They retained part of the revenue for personal use and for maintaining a stipulated contingent of horses and elephants. • These contingents provided the Vijayanagara kings with an effective fighting force with which they brought the entire southern peninsula under their control. Some of the revenue was also used for the maintenance of temples and irrigation works. • The Amara-nayakas sent tribute to the king annually and personally appeared in the royal court with gifts to express their loyalty. Kings occasionally asserted their control over them by transferring them from one place to another to prove their control over the Amara nayakas. Any three points to be described. (Pg 175)
Q26	“The Burdwan auction had a strange twist and was considered as a big public event in 1797”, explain the statement. Answer <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The East India Company had fixed the revenue that each zamindar in their territories in India had to pay. • The estates of those who failed to pay the revenue, were auctioned. Raja of Burdwan had failed to pay the revenue. His estates had been put up for auction. • Numerous purchasers came to the auction and the estates were sold to the highest bidder. But the Collector soon discovered a strange twist to the tale. • A British collector had soon discovered that many of the purchasers were servants and agents of Raja who had bought the land on behalf of their master. • Over 95 per cent of the sales at the auction was fictitious. • The Raja’s estates had been publicly sold, but he remained in control of his zamindari. This incident was a strange twist in the auction of estates of Raja of Burdwan Any three relevant points to be explained. (Pg 228)	3

Q 27

“The relationship of the sepoy s with the superior white officers underwent a significant change in the years preceding the uprising of 1857”, support the statement with examples.

3
CB

Answer

- The relationship of the sepoy s with their superior white officers underwent a significant change in the years preceding the uprising of 1857.
- In the 1820s, white officers made it a point to maintain friendly relations with the sepoy s. They would take part in their leisure activities – they wrestled with them, fenced with them and went out hawking with them. Many of them were fluent in Hindustani and were familiar with the customs and culture of the country. These officers were disciplinarian and father figure rolled into one.
- In the 1840s, this began to change. The officers developed a sense of superiority and started treating the sepoy s as their racial inferiors, riding roughshod over their sensibilities.
- Abuse and physical violence became common and thus the distance between sepoy s and officers grew.
- Trust was replaced by suspicion. The fears of the sepoy s about the new cartridge, their grievances about leave, their grouse about the increasing misbehaviour and racial abuse on the part of their white officers were communicated back to the villages.

Answer

“A cherry that will drop into our mouth one day”, who made this remark? (1)

Explain the series of events that eventually led the cherry to fall into the mouth of the British (2)

- In 1851 Governor General Lord Dalhousie described the kingdom of Awadh as “a cherry that will drop into our mouth one day”.
- Five years later, in 1856, the kingdom was formally annexed to the British Empire. The conquest happened in stages.
- The Subsidiary Alliance had been imposed on Awadh in 1801.
- As per the terms of this alliance the Nawab had to disband his military force allowed the British to position their troops within the kingdom and act in accordance with the advice of the British Resident.

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Deprived of his armed forces the Nawab became increasingly dependent on the British to maintain law and order within the kingdom, Nawab Wajid Ali Shah was dethroned and exiled to Calcutta on the plea that the region was being misgoverned. Any other relevant points. Q 28	“The Mahabharata is an invaluable source available to historians to study social practices and norms in early societies”, Justify the statement. Answer- <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Mahabharata a dynamic epic-contains vivid descriptions of battles, forests, palaces & settlements. Its growth was not hindered by its language. Over the centuries it has been written in many languages of the world. It depicts an on-going dialogue between the people & communities on the one hand and the authors on the other hand. It incorporated many stories that originated in different regions. Main story of the epic was often retold in different ways. Many episodes of this text had been depicted in sculptures and paintings. They also provide a wide range of themes & performing arts like plays, dances, and narratives. Any eight points to be explained. (Pg 55) OR Examine the elements analysed by the historians on the text of Mahabharata. Answer- <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Historians often use textual traditions or content of text to understand the processes. Some texts lay down. Norms of social behaviour; others describe and occasionally comment on a wide range of social situations and practices. They can also catch a glimpse of some social actors from the inscriptions. As each text and inscription was written from the perspective of specific social categories, we need to keep in mind who composed what and for whom and when (the authors, the time and period). They also need to consider the language used, and the ways in which the text circulated. Used carefully, texts allow us to piece together attitudes and practices that shaped social histories. 	8 CB

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Two things became apparent: there were several common elements in the Sanskrit versions of the story, evident in manuscripts found all over the subcontinent, also evident were enormous regional variations in the ways in which the text had been transmitted over the centuries. These variations were documented in footnotes and appendices to the main text. • The understanding of these processes is derived primarily from texts written in Sanskrit. • When issues of social history were explored for the first time by historians in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, they tended to take these texts at face value – believing that everything that was laid down in these texts was practised. Subsequently, scholars began studying other traditions, from works in Pali, Prakrit and Tamil. • These studies indicated that the ideas contained in normative Sanskrit texts were overall recognised as authoritative and important. These elements were considered by historians while examining the text for reconstructing the social histories. Any other relevant points (Pg- 72)
Q 29	Examine the evidence that suggests land revenue was important for the Mughal Fiscal system. Answer- <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Revenue from the land was the economic mainstay of the Mughal Empire. It was therefore vital for the state to create an administrative apparatus to ensure control over agricultural production, and to fix and collect revenue from across the length and breadth of the rapidly expanding empire. • This apparatus included the office (daftar) of the diwan who was responsible for supervising the fiscal system of the empire. • Revenue officials and record keepers penetrated the agricultural domain and became a decisive agent in shaping agrarian relations. • The Mughal state tried to first acquire specific information about the extent of the agricultural lands in the empire and what these lands produced before fixing the burden of taxes on people. • The land revenue arrangements consisted of two stages – first, assessment and then actual collection. The jama was the amount assessed, as opposed to hasil, the amount collected. • Akbar decreed that while he should strive to make cultivators pay in cash, the option of payment in kind was also to be kept open. While fixing revenue, the attempt of the state was to maximise its claims. • Both cultivated and cultivable lands were measured in each province. The Ain compiled the aggregates of such lands during Akbar’s rule. 	8

- Aurangzeb expressly instructed his revenue officials to prepare annual records of the number of cultivators in each village. Yet not all areas were measured successfully.

Examine the condition of zamindars in Mughal agrarian society.

Answer--

- The zamindars who were landed proprietors who also enjoyed certain social and economic privileges by virtue of their superior status in rural society.
- Caste was one factor that accounted for the elevated status of zamindars, another factor was that they performed certain services (khidmat) for the state.
- The zamindars held extensive personal lands termed milkiyat, meaning property. Milkiyat lands were cultivated for the private use of zamindars, often with the help of hired or servile labour.
- The zamindars could sell, bequeath, or mortgage these lands at will. Zamindars also derived their power from the fact that they could often collect revenue on behalf of the state, a service for which they were compensated financially. Control over military resources was another source of power. Most zamindars had fortresses (qilachas) as well as an armed contingent comprising units of cavalry, artillery, and infantry.
- If we visualise social relations in the Mughal countryside as a pyramid, zamindars clearly constituted its very narrow apex. Abu'l Fazl's account indicates that an "upper-caste", Brahmana-Rajput combine had already established firm control over rural society. It also reflects a fairly large representation from the so-called intermediate castes, as well as a liberal sprinkling of Muslim zamindaris.
- Contemporary documents give the impression that conquest may have been the source of the origin of some zamindaris. The dispossession of weaker people by a powerful military chieftain was quite often a way of expanding a zamindari.
- It is, however, unlikely that the state would have allowed such a show of aggression by a zamindar unless he had been confirmed by an imperial order (sanad).
- More important were the slow processes of zamindari consolidation, which are also documented in sources. This involved colonisation of new lands, by transfer of rights, by order of the state and by purchase. These were the processes which perhaps permitted people belonging to the relatively "lower" castes to enter the rank of zamindars as zamindaris were bought and sold quite briskly in this period.

Q 31	Read the following source carefully and answer the questions that follow. The world beyond the palace Just as the Buddha’s teachings were compiled by his followers, the teachings of Mahavira were also recorded by his disciples. These were often in the form of stories, which could appeal to ordinary people. Here is one example, from a Prakrit text known as the Uttaradhyayana Sutta, describing how a queen named Kamalavati tried to persuade her husband to renounce the world: If the whole world and all its treasures were yours, you would not be satisfied, nor would all this be able to save you. When you die, O king and leave all things behind, dhamma alone, and nothing else, will save you. As a bird dislikes the cage, so do I dislike (the world). I shall live as a nun without offspring, without desire, without the love of gain, and without hatred ...Those who have enjoyed pleasures and renounced them, move about like the wind, and go wherever they please, unchecked like birds in their flight ... Leave your large kingdom ... abandon what pleases the senses, be without attachment and property, then practise severe penance, being firm of energy.... 31.1 Identify the person who persuaded the king to renounce the world. 31.2 “Oh king, dhamma alone and nothing else will save you”-. Q 33	Read the following source carefully and answer the questions that follow: “The British element is gone, but they have left the mischief behind”. Sardar Vallabh Bhai Patel said: It is no use saying that we ask for separate electorates, because it is good for us. We have heard it long enough. We have heard it for years, and as a result of this agitation we are now a separate nation ... Can you show me one free country where there are separate electorates? If so, I shall be prepared to accept it. But in this unfortunate country if this separate electorate is going to be persisted in, even after the division of the country, woe betide the country; it is not worth living in. Therefore, I say, it is not for my good alone, it is for your own good that I say it, forget the past. One day, we may be united ... The British element is gone, but they have left the mischief behind. We do not want to perpetuate that mischief. (Hear, hear). When the British introduced this element, they had not expected that they will have to go so soon. They wanted it for their easy administration. That is all right. But they have left the legacy behind. Are we to get out of it or not? CAD, VOL.V 33.1. ‘They have left a legacy behind “who is referred as’ They’ ‘in this statement. 33.2. What do you infer from the statement ‘they have left the legacy behind Are we to get out of it or not’? 33.3. Identify the ultimate message stressed by Sardar Valla Bhai Patel in his speech. Answer- 33.1. The British 33.2. The British did not want Indians to be united, they applied divide and rule policy, for their easy administration and they created a division which had affected the life of the people/ entire nation and hence the need to get out of it was insisted. 33.3. He was urging the people of our country not to adopt the legacy left behind by the British called ‘separation’/divide and rule policy. (Pg-328)	1 2 1
